

The Council of the City and County of Honolulu

joins the people of Hawaii in honoring the men and women who made possible the historic commemorating the seafaring achievements of our Polynesian ancestors.

VOYAGE OF THE HOKULE'A

With pride in our rich heritage, we of modern Hawaii look upon Hokule'a as a cultural catalyst and inspiration for the revival of nearly-forgotten aspects of life in old Hawaii.

On behalf of the people of the City and County of Honolulu, the Council congratulates the officers and members of the Polynesian Voyaging Society and the many others who were involved in the success of Hokule'a. And to the crew who sailed safely to Tahiti and back using ancient navigational means, our warmest aloha and best wishes.

May we all, through the voyage of the Hokule'a, learn enough about the oceanic environs that have shaped our culture to enable us to embark upon our own personal voyages of rediscovery.

WHEREAS, the feat of the Hokule'a was an outstanding salute to the Bicentennial of our nation,

NOW, THEREFORE, I, FRANK F. FASI, Mayor of the City and County of Honolulu, do hereby welcome home the Hokule'a on behalf of all our people and extend congratulations and aloha to all the members of its crew and to the Polynesian Voyaging Society which sponsored the great voyage.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
EIGHTH LEGISLATURE, 1975
STATE OF HAWAII

H.R. NO. 805

HOUSE RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATING THE POLYNESIAN VOYAGING SOCIETY FOR ITS BICENTENNIAL POLYNESIAN CANOE PROJECT AND COMMENDING THE SOCIETY FOR ITS EFFORT TO HAVE A COMMEMORATIVE STAMP ISSUED.

WHEREAS, the Polynesian Voyaging Society has constructed a 60-foot double-hulled polynesian canoe and will sail the vessel round trip from Hawaii to Tahiti in the Spring of 1975 in celebration of our nation's Bicentennial; and

WHEREAS, archaeologists and anthropologists now put Polynesian settlement in the Hawaiian Islands around the year 750 A.D., the canoe project, recognized by the Hawaii Bicentennial Commission and the State Foundation For Culture And The Arts, will recreate an event of discovery and settlement by Polynesian seafarers; and

WHEREAS, many centuries ago daring canoe voyaging over vast expanses was skillfully accomplished without benefit of modern means and technique, the Polynesian Voyaging Society's canoe crew will, without navigational instruments, chart the 2,400 miles distance between Hawaii and Tahiti by the stars, just as the original voyagers did; and

WHEREAS, considerable interest in and support for the Polynesian Voyaging Society canoe project has already been engendered in the State of Hawaii, and where young and old alike have benefited, and will benefit in the future, from the Society's educational and scientific programs relating to ancient Polynesian navigation and food provisioning, and from investigation of historic discovery and settlement; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the House of Representatives of the Eighth Legislature of the State of Hawaii, Regular Session of 1975, that the Polynesian Voyaging Society be congratulated on its thrilling and timely accomplishments relating to its canoe project; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Polynesian Voyaging Society be commended for its efforts to have a Bicentennial commemorative stamp issued depicting its Polynesian canoe; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a duly certified copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the Polynesian Voyaging Society.

RESOLUTION NO. 595

WHEREAS, the double-bowed voyaging canoe, the HOKULE'A, set sail from Honolua Bay on the island of Maui on May 1, 1976; and

WHEREAS, the HOKULE'A's destination is Papeete on the island of Tahiti in the Society Islands; and

WHEREAS, the 2,700-mile voyage was undertaken not in a modern steamship but in a voyaging canoe patterned after the ancient sailing canoes that are believed to have first arrived in the Hawaiian Islands more than 1,200 years ago; and

WHEREAS, as did their ancestors generations before them, the crew of the HOKULE'A undertook their historic voyage without such modern navigational aids as the compass and sextant; and

WHEREAS, after 31 days on the open sea, during which the canoe was alternately becalmed in the doldrums and buffeted by unseasonable winds and squalls, the HOKULE'A reached her first landfall, the Island of Mataiva in the Society Islands; and

WHEREAS, the first landing by the HOKULE'A, only 200 miles north of Tahiti, proves that it was eminently practical for ancient vessels to follow the same route on planned trips from Hawaii and Tahiti, thereby casting great doubt upon the theory of some modern scholars that the Polynesians could not have crossed some 2,500 miles of open ocean without modern navigational instruments; and

WHEREAS, the tremendous feats of seamanship and navigational skill displayed by the crew of the HOKULE'A have rekindled in the hearts and minds of all the people of Hawaii a new sense of pride in their history,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE COUNTY OF HAWAII that the Polynesian Voyaging Society and the crew of the HOKULE'A be and are hereby extended the commendation of the people of the County of Hawaii, together with their sincere best wishes for a successful voyage to Papeete and home again.

RESOLUTION

REQUESTING THAT THE MAYOR, THROUGH THE DEPARTMENT OF PARKS AND RECREATION, SERIOUSLY CONSIDER AND RENDER FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE TO THE POLYNESIAN VOYAGING SOCIETY

WHEREAS, the City Council of the City and County of Honolulu had previously adopted a resolution honoring the seafaring achievement of the Hokule'a from Hawaii to Tahiti and back along the sea routes probably utilized by our Hawaiian ancestors; and

WHEREAS, the Polynesian Voyaging Society has run into financial difficulties when financial contributions and donations from the community have proven to be insufficient to meet the expenses incurred by the voyage of Hokule'a; and

WHEREAS, the City Council is of the opinion that the successful voyage of the Hokule'a has served as a cultural catalyst and inspiration for the revival of nearly forgotten aspects of life in old Hawaii, especially the interest in learning more about our ocean environments as well as in the sport of canoeing and sailing; and

WHEREAS, the City Council believes that a public purpose and the public's best interest will be served by providing financial assistance to the Polynesian Voyaging Society in order to pay off its financial obligations incurred in the launching of this historic voyaging event; and

WHEREAS, the personnel of the Department of Parks and Recreation has been working with and been closely involved with the Hokule'a project from its inception; and

WHEREAS, the City and County of Honolulu, through the Department of Parks and Recreation, has previously rendered similar financial assistance to certain non-profit organizations like the Honolulu Symphony Society and Flora Pacifica which appeared to be worthy of public support; now, therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED by the City Council of the City and County of Honolulu that the Mayor, through the Department of Parks and Recreation, be requested to seriously consider and render financial assistance in the sum of $2,500 to the Polynesian Voyaging Society for the considerations indicated hereinabove.

RESOLUTION

BE IT FINALLY RESOLVED that the Clerk be, and she is hereby directed to forward copies of this resolution to the Honorable Frank F. Fasi, Mayor of the City and County of Honolulu, Mr. Young Suk Ko, Director of the Department of Parks and Recreation, and to the Polynesian Voyaging Society.

SUPPORTING THE EFFORTS OF THE KANEOHE OUTDOOR CIRCLE IN SPONSORING THE IMPLEMENTATION OF THE "KANEOHE BAY PARK" CONCEPT

WHEREAS, members of the Kaneohe Outdoor Circle are conscientiously applying their time and talents toward implementing the concept of the Kaneohe Bay Park on the island of Oahu; and

WHEREAS, the Kaneohe Bay Park is a part of the 1976 American Revolution Bicentennial observance in the State of Hawaii and thereby worthy of support by the City and County of Honolulu; and

WHEREAS, the efforts are intended to recognize the existing park sites and to show the need for improvements and additional parks in the Kaneohe Bay region; and

WHEREAS, the Heeia Land Parcels, Heeia Fishpond--a national historic landmark, Matson Point (Law O Kea'Lohi), and the Heeia Meadowlands/Heeia Marshland area, constitute a scenic, instructive "living museum", a valuable fish and wildlife habitat and would have cultural, educational, and historical significance for the people of Hawaii; and

WHEREAS, since the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in 1973 indicated that the Heeia Flood Hazard Area has a chance of 1 in 100 of being inundated in any single year, the speedy acquisition of the Heeia Meadowland/Heeia Marshland area for open space and natural park use, would not only save the area from the threat of urbanization but would also launch the flood control program for the safety of our residents; now, therefore,

A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA'S BICENTENNIAL CELEBRATION
AND MAKING AN APPROPRIATION THEREFOR.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. Findings and Purpose. 1976 will mark the 200th
2 anniversary of the founding of the United States of America, and
3 in celebration thereof, the Nation and the states are sponsoring
4 and supporting many activities in recognition of our Nation's 5 bicentennial. Hawaii's place in the History of our country is 6 truly unique, for it was first populated by a courageous people
7 who through application of sailing skills, knowledge and tech-
8 nology now nearly lost in modern times, sailed from distant parts
9 of the Pacific and settled in the islands of Hawaii. The legis-
10 lature recognizes the phenomenal achievements of the voyages of 11 the first inhabitants of Hawaii, and finds that the celebration
12 of the United States' Bicentennial is a singularly appropriate
13 occasion to commemorate the discovery and settling of Hawaii and 14 the sea-going accomplishments of the ancient settlers of Hawaii.
15 The purpose of this Act is to ensure that Hawaii's celebration
16 of the Bicentennial is mindful of the proud heritage of Hawaii by

Welina nō:

The University of Hawai'i Committee for the Preservation and Study of Hawaiian Language, Art and Culture wishes to thank you for providing us with a copy of A Proposal For An Experimental Voyage Between Hawai'i and Tahiti.

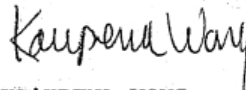

This project of a full-scale, experimental, round-trip voyage of over 4,000 miles in a double-canoe, to be built and sailed in the manner of the first Polynesian settlers in Hawai'i of about 1,500 years ago, impresses the Committee as being of profound scientific, historical, educational and inspirational value.

The plans appear to have been carefully detailed by a team of team of distinguished authorities. We understand that broad community support is being sought for implementation of the three-year project.

The Committee considers this voyage proposal as an imaginative and eminently effective means of furthering the preservation and study of authentic Hawaiian culture.

Accordingly, the Committee wishes to commend your Society on this exciting adventure and extends this formal endorsement.

WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1977

House of Representatives

THE MIGHTY HAWAIIAN CANOE

HON. CECIL "CEC" HEFTEL

OF HAWAII

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, May 4, 1977

Mr. HEFTEL. Mr. Speaker, last year's voyage of the Hokule'a, a double-hulled Polynesian voyaging canoe, captivated the imagination of people throughout America as one of the country's most courageous and inspired Bicentennial adventures. The National Geographic Society documented the journey from Hawaii to Tahiti and back in a television program seen by millions on the Public Broadcasting System.

The emerging desire among young people to do things "the old way" is evident in the growing number of canoe clubs throughout Hawaii. Interclub races are held nearly every weekend, culminating in the famous Molokai-to-Oahu race during Aloha Week festivities in the fall.

This year, and for the first time, paddlers will challenge the treacherous Kauai Channel between Oahu and Kauai in the world championship of canoe racing—a crossing experts say has yet to be achieved by any open outrigger canoe.

This renaissance of the Hawaiian canoe has been captured in an article written by Phaenon Landen for the Hawaii Visitors Bureau. I submit this article for inclusion in my remarks as a thorough description of the origins of the canoe and the sailing mastery of the Polynesians—old and new:

THE MIGHTY HAWAIIAN CANOE
(By Phaenon Landen)

Unlike canoes pictured in most outdoor magazines, the Hawaiian canoe is an outrigger. Centuries before the time of Columbus or Magellan when Europeans were afraid to lose sight of the land, Polynesians were sailing the vast Pacific in huge double-hulled canoes—two outriggers lashed together for stability on the open sea.

Without the aid of instruments or charts, for they had no written language, they navigated the rough seas guided by wind patterns, ocean currents, birds and cloud formations, but above all the stars. They used their knowledge of astronomy to the fullest to chart, in their minds, their way to unknown lands.

Allegedly coming from Southeast Asia and driven by the desperation of famine or war or perhaps, by the spirit of their gods, the various cultures who would be ancestors of the Polynesians moved southward to Indonesia about 1500 B.C.

From there they moved onward across the vast Pacific, to Micronesia; southward to Fiji, the New Hebrides and New Caledonia. Some settled in Samoa and Tonga while others sailed farther into the Societies (Tahiti) and the Marquesas and then ultimately to the Hawaiian Islands. Their path of migration formed what is now called the Polynesian Triangle, outlined by the Hawaiian chain, New Zealand and Easter Island. Within the triangle lie the Marquesas and Society Islands; Tuamotu and Gambler Archipelagos and Pitcairn.

The Polynesians became master builders, peerless navigators and accomplished sailors. Their huge wa'a (canoes) were made only of wood, coconut fiber and pandanus leaves. Their only tools were the pre-historic stone adze, knives of shell, bone and coral and the rasp of a manta ray's skin. With these and guidance from their gods, they hollowed and shaped canoes from giant trees of koa and other hardwoods. In some areas, of the Tuamotu Archipelago, timber was scarce and trees were small. Yet strong, seaworthy craft were still made by joining small carved planks edge-to-edge and holding them together with pegs and sennit cord lashing made from coconut fibers. The sails were plaited pandanus matting. The hulls were water-proofed by taking gum from the breadfruit trees, wrapping it around candle nuts, skewering them on coconut-leaf ribs and putting them to torch. The hot drippings, congealed by water, formed pitch. The finished canoe was polished with the nectar of flowers.

If all this sounds primitive and crude, the words of Spanish explorer De Quieres tell us differently. He wrote in 1606, describing the Polynesian canoe, "Better could not have been made in Castille." Captain James Cook added, "... our cabinet makers do not polish the most costly furniture better."

Traversing rough open seas that in years to follow would wreck many large European ships, the Polynesians eventually had settled every inhabitable island in an expanse of ocean roughly equal to the entire land surface of the whole Western Hemisphere. All this before European exploration began!

During this time a group of people of sturdy build and great strength left the Marquesas Islands between 500-700 A.D., and another from Tahiti between 850 and 1250 A.D. Taking their 'ohana, or families, a few pigs, chickens and dogs; dried foods in the form of bananas, breadfruit, coconut and fish; seeds, roots and cuttings of plants, and guided by the star Arcturus, they moved across 2400 miles of rough sea to a new chain of islands later to be called Hawaii. The history of their voyages was recorded in the stories and the meles (chants) of the people.

By the time Captain Cook sailed into Kealahou Bay in 1779, The Sandwich Isles (later to be called the Hawaiian Islands) were so well populated that more than 3,000 canoes sailed out to welcome him.

From the moment the idea of a canoe was conceived until it was finished, offerings and prayers were made by the Kahuna Kalai Wa'a, the canoe building priest, to seek guidance from the gods. Nothing was done without the favor of the gods. Even a small mistake by a worker, breaking the flow of spiritual unity, was so serious as to threaten the life of the offender. Thus, as in all things they did, a mystical mana permeated the ritual of canoe building and remained to give the canoe a spirit of its own. When it was finished, it was sailed silently out to open sea. The first living thing sighted, whether whale, shark, bird, etc., became the 'aumakua, or protective spirit-god of the canoe.

The single outrigger canoe, built by the Polynesians, was mainly used for fishing, sports, inter-island transportation and war. Depending on the type of canoe, its use and the area from which it came, it varied in style, design and number of sails. Its length could be from 30 to 118 feet with the capacity to carry from two to 200 men.

By removing the floats and lashing the hulls together, bow to stern, it became a double-hulled vessel that was stronger, rode better in the water and was large enough to move a family or a village long distances across open sea.

In 1774 Captain Cook reported seeing, off the coast of Tahiti, 180 huge war canoes with 170 smaller canoes carrying 7,760 men to a great naval battle.

King Kamehameha the Great the first Hawaiian to reign over all the Hawaiian Islands, used many 20- to 60-foot outriggers as war canoes in his efforts to defeat neighboring islands. During his reign the same sturdy canoes carried, not only his mighty warriors, but four cannons he had acquired, as well.

After Cook's discovery of the Hawaiian Islands, whaling ships and sandalwood traders followed along with the missionaries. Western man's culture was rapidly adopted by the Hawaiians. Eastern ways followed and were also assimilated when the Chinese and the Japanese immigrated to work in Hawaii's sugar and pineapple plantations. The Hawaiian culture all but disappeared, along with canoe building and its use in daily life.

Today, the outrigger canoe is used only in sports. Sails are not used. Paddlers can be seen every day in Hawaiian waters rigorously training for the many regattas and long distance races that take place all year.

Over 40 different canoe clubs, under the direction of two major canoe racing associations, take part throughout the year in interclub competition with speed, endurance and expertise as their criteria. Canoeing, as one of the last remaining ancient Hawaiian sports, is taken seriously in the islands.

During Aloha Week, canoe clubs compete in a 55-mile race across the treacherous Molokai Channel to Waikiki Beach on Oahu.

Though the huge double-hulled canoe disappeared from Hawaiian waters many, many years ago, it was not forgotten. In 1975 Herb Kane, a Hawaiian artist with an intense interest in the history of his people, was instrumental in forming the Polynesian Voyaging Society to build a 60-foot replica of a 12th century double-hulled Polynesian canoe. They named it Hokule'a (Star of Gladness), for the star Arcturus, which supposedly guided the ancient Polynesians from Tahiti to Hawaii. The goals of the voyage were to "... establish the truth about our origins," said Kane, and to generate enthusiasm and respect for the know-how of their ancestors.

In building the Hokule'a, the old ways were duplicated in every way possible except for some modern building materials. During a year of intense work and training in a cluttered environment, strange things happened. The old ancestral pride in the past was rekindled for the Hawaiian people, and a sense of the mystical in canoe making and sailing was reawakened. The crew and workers became close as an 'ohana, and as they shaped the canoe, it seemed to shape them. Mana (spiritual power) permeated both man and canoe.

With the feathered lei-moe tied to the top sail for wind direction, and for protection, two kamani-wood Ki'i figures with their bent knees and the golden shell disc of the universe held aloft, the Hokule'a left Maui for Tahiti. As in the old days, she was navigated by the wind, clouds, currents and the stars. She successfully sailed to Tahiti and back, where on both shores thousands of emotionally moved well-wishers gathered to welcome her.

The re-kindled pride of the past burns brightly among the Hawaiian people today, and the Hokule'a can be seen plying between islands teaching the old ways of sailing, while laying plans to return to Tahiti. This time, they will go via the Kealahou Channel off the Island of Hawaii, "the route to Tahiti"—according to a legend chanted in the mele by the old ones.

The visitor to Hawaii can share the pride of the Hawaiians by watching exciting canoe races held during the year. He may also take a ride in an outrigger canoe from the beach in Waikiki. The Bishop Museum in Honolulu provides a day of fascinating exploration through Polynesian history. Many ancient artifacts are on display, including the mighty Hawaiian canoe.
